2026 Annual Report

A Note from InOne

As we look back on 2026, our hearts are filled with gratitude. Another year has passed, and once again we have witnessed God's incredible faithfulness. Looking back at where He has led us leaves us standing in awe. Time and time again, He has reminded us that when He calls, He also faithfully provides.

This year has been filled with moments that only God could orchestrate. He opened doors for us to partner with churches and organizations across our community, allowing us to worship, serve, and encourage the Body of Christ together. He also gave us the privilege of participating in two short-term mission trips—one overseas and one within the United States. God expanding our vision and reminding us that worship has no borders. Every opportunity has been a testimony of His grace and His perfect timing.

Like every journey of faith, this year also brought its share of challenges. We had many honest, heart-to-heart conversations as a team. One of the biggest steps of faith was moving into our new ministry space, the Upper Room. When our director, Billy, first shared the vision, many questions remained unanswered. Our budget was limited, opinions differed, and the timeline seemed almost impossible. Yet, as we prayed and took one faithful step at a time, we watched God provide in ways we never could have imagined. Seeing the vision slowly become reality we know that God's plans are always greater than our own.

Throughout this year, God has been teaching us to trust Him more deeply, to walk in unity, and to keep our eyes fixed on His calling rather than our own understanding. Ministry is never about what we can accomplish through our own strength—it is about faithfully saying "yes" and allowing God to work through willing hearts.

As we look toward the future, we believe InOne is more than an organization. Our desire is to raise up worship leaders who will faithfully serve in their own churches, to encourage worshippers to continually examine the posture of their hearts, and to proclaim the truth that we are called to worship together in the Lord as one body.

As InOne continues to grow, we are constantly amazed by the people God has brought alongside us. Beyond a shared passion for worship, He has gathered individuals gifted in songwriting, teaching, encouragement, creativity, hospitality, leadership, and building meaningful relationships. We believe this is no coincidence. God has intentionally brought each person into this ministry for His purpose, and we trust that His plans are far higher than anything we could imagine.

Finally, thank you to everyone who has prayed, given, served, and walked alongside us this year. Every prayer, every act of generosity, every word of encouragement, and every partnership has made a difference. You are part of this story, and together we have witnessed God's faithfulness again and again.

As we continue pressing toward the goal, may all that we do point people to Jesus and bring glory to His name alone.

With gratitude,
InOne Music Ministries

SERVING the Local Churches

Throughout the year, InOne Music Ministries had the privilege of serving numerous local churches, including DCBC, GCBC, MIC, Joy Church, Cedar Hill Chinese Church, and many others through worship music. Whether leading worship services, joining fellowship gatherings, encouraging brothers and sisters in Christ, or holding evangelistic concerts, every opportunity reminds us that worship is a powerful way to point people to Jesus and strengthen His Church.

We were also honored to partner with the Chinese Christian Herald Crusade and churches across the DFW area for a special evening of worship, prayer, and communion. Hundreds of believers gathered to worship, pray, and seek the Lord together. It was a beautiful testimony of God's work and the unity He is building among His people.

We are deeply grateful to God for every opportunity to serve and for the partnerships He has established with local churches and ministry organizations. It is a privilege to labor together for His Kingdom.

GOING On Mission

Praise God! This year, InOne Music Ministries had the opportunity to participate in two mission trips—one overseas and one within the United States.

In July, members of our team traveled to Indonesia, partnering with local churches to lead worship, provide music training, encourage believers, and share the Gospel through outreach ministry. It was a joyful reminder that worship transcends languages and cultures as we witnessed God moving among people from many different backgrounds.

In September, we continued answering God's call by serving on another mission trip within the United States. Through worship, fellowship, and discipleship, we were reminded that missions are not simply about traveling—they are about faithfully bringing Christ wherever He leads us.

We thank God for opening these doors and allowing us to take part in His Great Commission. Every journey strengthened our faith, expanded our vision, and reminded us that all nations belong to Him.

IN CONVERSATION
STORY ABOUT MISSION

As InOne Music Ministries' music director, Crausy pours out her heart on serving the Lord through music. Two years ago, after she came back from a short-term mission trip to Malaysia, she wrote a song called "Jounery" , one of the lyrics says,"All nations and all peoples will praise You." Every time she sings that line, she's taken back to those moments of worshiping with people from different cultures and backgrounds. It felt like a small glimpse of heaven.

Since then, She has sensed God clearly calling, to use music to bring the Gospel to different parts of the world. This summer, Crausy has the opportunity to step into that calling. She along with Billy joined the mission team of Collin County Chinese Fellowship Church to serve in Indonesia for 10 days, visiting four cities: Cikarang, Semarang, Magelang, and Malang.

What was one of the most memorable moments from your time in Indonesia?

During our time there, I felt surrounded by the constant sound of chanting. There are mosques on almost every street in Indonesia, and each one has loudspeakers broadcasting the adhan, the Islamic call to prayer, to the community five times a day.

In the middle of our trip, we made a special visit to one of the largest mosques on the island of Java, Masjid Agung Jawa Tengah. As our team stood on the grounds, surrounded by people and the sound of chanting, we sang "Amazing Grace" and prayed.

Hearing songs of praise and prayers to God rise over this land moved me to tears. The heaviness in my heart was lifted. It reminded me that God is at work everywhere—drawing people to Himself and calling His Church to remain faithful to His mission.

Throughout the trip, where did you see God working in ways that surprised or encouraged you?

On the fourth day, we served at Paddy Seeds, a learning center for children with special needs. I led a workshop for parents on using music therapy to support children with special needs. Most of the families there are Muslim.

For me, this was somewhat of a side project because it wasn't directly related to worship. I also finished preparing the presentation later than expected, so I was a little nervous. But after the presentation, I began talking about how these children are special and deeply loved, and how the caregivers also need to be cared for. I told them that they are not alone—that there is Someone who hears them and will always be there when they need help.

As I spoke, a few ladies began to cry, while others nodded their heads. Perhaps no one had ever told them this before.But God knows what is heavy on our hearts. At that moment, I realized that God had given me the experience and a heart for children with special needs for this very purpose—so that they could see His love through me.

Music opened many doors for ministry during this trip. How did you see worship help connect people across different languages and cultures?

We had the opportunity to visit a ministry focused on serving Indonesian domestic workers. We sang worship songs in Cantonese, Mandarin, and Indonesian.

During the trip, I also discovered that one of the ministry leaders would be traveling to Hong Kong while I was there. I visited her church and training center and met several members of their small worship teams. After sharing lunch together, we began talking and eventually came up with a plan for InOne to connect with the church and provide regular worship training.

It was such an unexpected connection, but God opened the door at exactly the right time. God is always at work!

How has this mission experience shaped your understanding of InOne's calling and vision for the future?

We met an amazing group of college students from the IOTA Ministry. Under the leadership of Pastor Hagai and Stephanie, these 12 young Christians live and serve within a Muslim community. They pray together every morning at 5 a.m. and intentionally share the Gospel with at least five people each week as they build relationships on their university campus.

IOTA means "a drop of water." When they first moved into this predominantly Muslim neighborhood, they were rejected by the community. Yet they chose to stay. They faithfully served, loved their neighbors, and became part of the community. Over time, God opened doors, and today, 20–30 children come to the center every day after school for tutoring and care.

A drop of water can become a force!

In many ways, this is also what we at InOne want to do. As we continue to serve through musical worship, we want to "run with perseverance the race marked out for us." We want to connect with more and more worshippers throughout the DFW area and see all these individual "drops of water" come together as a force to expand God's Kingdom.

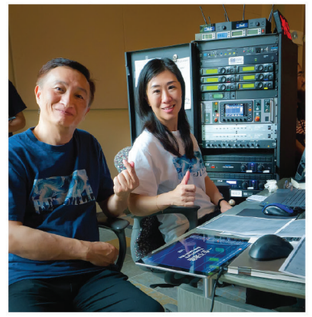
If you could share one encouragement with those who have been praying for and supporting this mission, what would you want them to know?

My heart was so blessed and encouraged throughout this trip!

On our last day of serving, we partnered with Getsemani Ministry, which serves a community with very limited resources. The large room they use has no windows, no air conditioning, and almost no furniture. Yet 30–35 children come every day for their after-school program.

We gifted the ministry an electric piano. When I started playing, the children became quiet, and I could see the sparkle in their eyes. Seeing them sing, laugh, and eagerly participate reminded us that God can use even the simplest places to accomplish extraordinary things.

My prayer is that more people would be called into the harvest field—to become the beautiful feet God uses to bring His love and Good News to others.



EXPANDING

Growing Together

This year has been a season of exciting growth for InOne Music Ministries.

By God's grace, we welcomed and formed a third worship team, allowing more people to serve and grow in ministry. We also moved into a larger ministry space, providing room to better equip worshippers, host gatherings, and prepare for the future God is leading us toward. Our music ministry also continued to grow as we wrote and released new original worship songs while expanding our music production efforts. Each new song represents another testimony of God's faithfulness and another opportunity to share the hope of Christ through music.

Looking back, we are continually amazed by God's provision. Time and time again, He has proven faithful. As the saying goes, "Where God guides, He provides." Every step forward has been possible because of His grace and the faithful prayers and support of His people. As we celebrate all that God has done, we look ahead with expectation, trusting Him to continue leading InOne into the next chapter of His mission.

IN CONVERSATION
STORY ABOUT CONNECT

Patrick immigrated from Hong Kong to the United States in the late 20th century. For many years, he longed to connect with fellow believers from Hong Kong through worship ministry. As many Hong Kong families relocated to the UK, God opened a new door. A visit to England gave him a deeper burden for the local churches.
Over the following year, he prayerfully built relationships and, in 2025, began serving alongside churches and worship teams in the UK. He saw God weaving together a bigger picture—bringing worshippers from different places and backgrounds together to encourage one another, share life, and answer God's call to worship.

You've carried the vision of a worshipper fellowship for many years. What does it mean to finally see the dots beginning to connect?

First, may all glory and praise be given to the Lord!

Through joining InOne Music Ministries and connecting with brothers and sisters in the UK, God has opened a door for me to see how He is bringing worshippers from different places, churches, and backgrounds together.
Although this journey is only beginning, each connection has been deeply encouraging. Hearing their passion for worship ministry has affirmed the importance of building a worshipper community.

This reflects the vision of InOne Music Ministries — not simply to create a music platform, but to build a Christ-centered community where worshippers can be equipped, supported, and journey together in the Lord.

Looking back, how has God prepared you for this season?

More than ten years ago, God allowed me to meet several brothers and sisters in Hong Kong and begin writing worship songs together. Although many of those songs were never used, the vision of building a worshipper community was already planted in my heart.

Later, God led me away from worship ministry for a season, allowing me to reflect on the true meaning of worship. I began to understand that worship is not only about music or serving in a ministry role, but about our relationship with God and how we respond to Him through our lives.

As someone who is more introverted, I know building connections does not come naturally to me. Yet God has continually placed different people in my life — from UK churches and pastors to fellow worshippers. Many of these connections were not planned by me, but were faithfully arranged by God.

Through this journey, I have learned that whatever God desires to accomplish, He will provide and make a way. As Scripture says, "And we know that in all things God works for the good of those who love him." (Romans 8:28)
This is the journey of InOne Music Ministries — seeing God connect people from different places to participate in His work, so that His name may be lifted high among the nations.

What encouraged you the most while connecting with worship ministries in the UK?

Before my first trip to the UK, I had the opportunity to connect with Simon from the Wheat Network and learn more about the needs of Chinese churches and worship ministries there. Through their work of connecting churches, music ministries, and worshippers, I saw the importance of cross-regional collaboration and support.

During my time in the UK, I also met young and passionate worship communities who faithfully serve with a shared desire — to build up believers, especially the younger generation, through worship ministry.

I was deeply encouraged and hope to contribute in some way. Although I am not based in the UK, through InOne Music Ministry, we can continue building connections where worshippers from different places encourage and support one another. My hope is that this vision will extend beyond the UK, reaching communities in the US and beyond.

What kind of fellowship are you praying to see in the coming years?

Worship ministry carries unique challenges. Because we often serve in front of others, it is easy to overlook our own spiritual needs. Especially in smaller churches with limited worship teams, long-term service can lead to physical, emotional, and spiritual exhaustion.

We hope the worshipper community can become a spiritual "refueling station" — a place where worshippers are renewed, strengthened, and connected in Christ. We also hope different communities can share their gifts in songwriting, theology, music, and production to create more songs that glorify God and bless the Church.

This reflects the vision of InOne Music Ministries —

"Worship on earth as it is in heaven."

We hope to journey with worshippers,
supporting and encouraging one another,
until the day we worship our Lord face to face.

How does this vision connect with InOne?

InOne Music Ministries is not only about developing musicians, but about building a worshipper community that crosses cultures, churches, and generations. Music is a tool, but the heart is the connection of lives. When worshippers from different backgrounds come together, we can encourage and equip one another, learning to worship God more deeply and in unity.
I believe God is expanding InOne's vision — not just to serve one community, but to become a bridge connecting worshippers from different places.

How can people pray for this growing network?

The greatest prayer for worshippers is that God would help us continually keep our eyes fixed on Him in our service.

Whether we are leading worship, writing songs, or serving in worship ministry, we must remember that our service is not for people, but for God. We pray that the worshipper community will help more brothers and sisters find one another, receiving support and encouragement in the Lord.

Although the worshipper community is not yet a regular gathering or formal ministry, we ask God to give InOne Music Ministry wisdom and direction as we seek to respond to His leading and walk alongside more worshippers.

What gives you hope for the future?

Beyond my experiences in the UK, I also see God raising up new worship communities in Dallas.
In recent years, young worship teams have grown, new ministries have emerged, and InOne Music Ministry has seen the formation of a third team. We are encouraged to see more brothers and sisters stepping into worship ministry.

May we continue to journey together in unity — supporting and encouraging one another as we press toward the goal and build a deeper, broader worshipping community in Christ.

NEW SPACE
UPPER ROOM

The Upper Room is traditionally believed to be the setting for two significant events in Scripture: the Last Supper and the coming of the Holy Spirit at Pentecost.

At the Last Supper, Jesus personally washed His disciples' feet, taught them to love and connect with one another, and reminded them to abide in Him. This was also the final teaching and equipping Jesus gave His disciples during His time on earth. Before He departed, He personally taught them how to love and serve one another and remain connected to Him and to each other. It was one of the deepest and most intimate moments shared between Jesus and His disciples recorded in the Gospels.

Before Pentecost, the disciples gathered together in prayer and waited upon God. When the Holy Spirit came and filled them, they boldly began to testify about Jesus and proclaim what they had received.

These two stories deeply inspired us and became the reason we chose to name our new ministries space "Upper Room." We pray that this will be a place where people encounter the Lord, connect with one another, pray and wait upon God, receive His equipping, and are sent out.

Moving forward, InOne will continue to live out our four core values: Serve, Connect, Equip, and Testify

Our prayer is that, in this Upper Room that God has prepared for us, InOne will live out this beautiful picture: a place where we encounter the Lord, connect with one another, are equipped by God, filled with the Holy Spirit, and sent out to testify for Him.

Financial Statement

InOne Music Ministries is supported by generous partners who share our passion for sharing the Gospel and equipping worshippers through music. We are committed to faithfully stewarding the resources God has entrusted to us to advance His Kingdom and nurture a community of worshippers who serve Him through music. With grateful hearts and a commitment to transparency, we'd like to share our 2026 financial highlights and how your generosity continues to support the ministry God is doing through InOne.

DID YOU KNOW ?

"InOne" is more than a name — it is our calling.
At InOne, we are united by fellowship, rooted in faith, and centered on Jesus Christ. As disciples of Christ, we worship with praise and surrender, faithfully using our gifts through stewardship to connect with others, serve His people, testify to the Gospel, and carry the message of the cross wherever He leads us. Together, we press on with endurance toward the goal of advancing God's Kingdom.

TOGETHER WE RUN, TOWARD THE GOAL.

May God continue to use InOne as His vessel — not because of our abilities, but because of His presence. And we invite you — not only to read this report, but to walk with us, to stand with us, and to witness even more of what God is going to do through worship and missions.
